The Cost Of Automobiling

There are at least 150,000 licensed automobiles in the three Prairie Provinces, and it is undoubtedly a safe and conservative estimate to place an average value of $1,000 on these cars. This represents an approximate investment for cars alone of one hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

The purchase of a car is, however, but the beginning of the expense bill. In the cities and larger towns ownership of a car involves the building of a garage in which to house it, or the payment of a monthly rental for storage in a public garage. Building permits recorded in Western cities in recent years include thousands of permits for private garages, and the cost of these would in the aggregate provide for the erection of many residences.

Then before the car can be operated a Government license must be obtained. The cost of these vary according to size and cost of the cars, but a low average may be placed at $15.00 per car, or a total of two and one-half millions of dollars paid to Governments.

Gasoline and oils are a further requisite if a car is not to stand idle. Again striking averages it is probably not excessive to assume an average of two gallons of gasoline per car per day for, say, a period 299 days in the year. Any less average consumption than this would mean that a car owner was not getting value in service for his capital investment in a car. Gasoline consumption would, therefore, amount to 399,000 gallons a day, or 60,000,000 gallons for the 299-day period, and at 35 cents per gallon will reach the substantial total of $21,000,000. Add oils and the bill will not fall far short of twenty-five millions of dollars for power and lubrication.

Then comes the bill, extremely difficult to estimate, for tires, repairs, recharging and replacement of batteries, and public garage services of one kind and another. Let this be placed at the low average of $100.00 per car—some new cars will run less than this, but others will exceed it several times over in a season—and another fifteen millions of dollars is added to the total.

Still another item is that for insurance on the car against theft, fire, personal liability and property loss; also insurance against fire on the garage building. Some car owners may not protect themselves in this way, but as a strictly business proposition they should. Put insurance down at an average of $30.00 per car, which is too low, and it comes to four and one-half millions of dollars.

These are the main cost items of automobiling in the three Prairie Provinces, but they do not include many other items too numerous to mention. They represent a formidable bill of two hundred millions of dollars, or an average of $100.00 for every man, woman and child in this Western country.

Eliminating the original capital investment for the cars, and charging seven per cent. on the money so invested, it will be found that the annual cost of maintaining the West's large and steadily increasing fleet of motor cars is between fifty and sixty millions of dollars.

To the extent that cars are used for business purposes, and are, therefore, revenue producing for the owner, this large expenditure in these so-called "hard times" may be justified. But it is a pretty well recognized fact that tens of thousands of these cars have been purchased and are used for pleasure purposes only.

Ownership of cars was kept in bounds and limited so long as the purchase of one was a spot cash proposition, although even then some people were foolish enough to mortgage their homes and businesses to buy a car. But when the manufacturers adopted the policy of selling cars on time with a small cash payment down, it became a case of "Keeping up with the Joneses," and everybody began doing it, many little realizing that the monthly cost of upkeep of a car was all their resources could stand without also having monthly payments to meet on the purchase price.

City men use a car now instead of walking a score or so of city blocks to their offices, thus losing the exercise which their sedentary occupations make so necessary to good health and physical fitness. On the other hand, the automobile has made it possible for city people to get out into the country and to summer resorts, golf links, etc., to an extent that was formerly impossible. It has been a boon to many young mothers thus enabled to take the children out for an airing. It has been an important factor, along with the rural telephone, in banishing much of the isolation and loneliness of farm life, and in times of sickness and accident has become indispensable to doctor and nurse.

One of Nature's Secrets

Here's a tree planted 291 years ago that will bear fruit again this season. Last year it yielded a bushel of pears. The tree is at Danversport, Mass. It was brought over from England by Governor John Endicott in 1630 and planted on his farm.

Why does Nature give 291 years of life to an unintelligent, relatively useless, tree—and kill off men with super-brains before they are a third as old? Is she jealous of her secrets, afraid we'll learn too much? You've noticed that the finest brains usually are in weak bodies—Nature trying to destroy them.

The Modern Girl

The most deadly foe of the girl of today is fatigue, according to Dr. Clelia Duell Mosher, of Leland Stanford University. "The modern girl craves a short but rich life," Dr. Mosher says. "She fills her life with incessant activities and thus courts nervous bankruptcy."

For Rheumatic Pains.—The pains and aches of Sciatica and Rheumatism should be treated with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. The soothing and healing properties of this famous remedy have been demonstrated for fifty years. Use it also for inflammatory pains, cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains, either in human beings or the lower animals.

Where Murder Is Commonplace

More Than 10,000 Murders a Year in United States

The murder record of the United States has reached a point where it has aroused comment from the Americans themselves.

A newspaper statistician recently put the situation emphatically in these words:

"If these 24 hours run true to form there will be 28 Americans slain."

That is, it seems, the daily murder score in the United States.

In other words, there are, in the neighboring republic, more than 10,000 murders a year.

But these figures account only for the murders brought to light. There must be others never reported. Then, too, of the long lists of missing persons reported, some, unquestionably, are victims of assassins.

More than that, the proportion of murders to the general population is increasing.

Twenty years ago the United States was twice as safe a country to live in. In other words, in twenty years the murder rate, in proportion to population, has doubled.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Rabbit Hunting On Motorcycles Becoming Popular in California

The mysterious nocturnal roar of motorcycles in the open fields at Del Rosa, near San Bernardino, Cal., which for some time caused farmers in the vicinity many sleepless nights, was explained recently by a youth who declared that rabbit hunting on motorcycles by night was fast becoming the popular sport of the town cyclists. He explained that riders chased the rabbits through the fields until the animals neared exhaustion, then drew up alongside and grabbed them by the ears.

Germans Like Hockey

Hockey and cricket, played by few in Germany before the war, are gaining in popularity, but tennis continues the game most in vogue. While the number of golf players has greatly increased in the last few years, the spread of this game is hampered by the lack of ground for links. Berlin, for instance, has only two courses.

Dust Causes Asthma. Even a little speck too small to see will lead to agonies which no words can describe. The walls of the breathing tubes contract and it seems as if the very life must pass. From this condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy brings the user to perfect rest. It relieves the passages and normal breathing is firmly established again. Hundreds of testimonials received annually prove its effectiveness.

United States to Assist Europe

The United States is not only willing but anxious to assist Europe in pushing the settlement of her reparations problem, but does not intend to participate in any political difficulties overseas, a spokesman for President Coolidge said, commenting on the proposed inter-allied conference in London to consider means of putting the reparations experts' plan into effect.

Using Hydrogen For Inflating Dirigibles

British Specifications Call For Use Of Inflammable Material

In spite of frequent disasters to the rigid type of dirigible, the airship is to be given further trial by the British Government. The record of the Shenandoah, though still brief, is encouraging. The longer record of the R-34, the British craft, which visited New York a few years ago, is notable. The tragedies of the R-38 (ZR-1) and the Roma do not prove that dirigible safety is impossible to attain.

The Shenandoah is inflated with helium. But that gas, while non-inflammable, has disadvantages. It is not so buoyant as hydrogen and an insuperable objection to it, from the British viewpoint, is that it is obtainable only on this continent. The dream of a quick airship service between Australia and England, via India, Singapore and Ceylon, hardly could be realized if the precious helium had to be brought from America.

So the specifications for the two great airships authorized by the MacDonald Government of Great Britain call for inflation with the highly inflammable hydrogen. It is believed, however, that safeguards in the vicinity of the internal-combustion engines will reduce the risks of fire to the minimum. It is pointed out that it is the gasoline vapor about the engines which has fired first, thus setting off the hydrogen. A great advantage in hydrogen is that the surplus which now is allowed to escape as the burden of the ship decreases on a long trip, through consumption of fuel and other stores, may be used for fuel for the engines themselves. This would increase the cruising range.—From the Buffalo Express.

Canadian Exports To U.S.

Products of Forests Helps Greatly to Boost Amount of Exports

Canadian exports to the United States for the twelve months ending with April, 1934, show an increase of something more than 48 millions of dollars over the corresponding period of 1922-23, and an example of the rapid growth in the demands of the United States upon the forest resources of the Dominion is furnished by the fact that of this 48-million increase, 31 millions comes from wood and paper exports. Next to wood and paper exports, animal products is of greatest importance in Canada's exports to the United States, with agricultural and vegetable products third.

NERVOUS DEPRESSION

Why People Are Low Spirited and Depressed

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits. Everything seems a burden; then come periods of nervous irritability, headaches and weariness. People who suffer this way lack vitality because their blood is poor and nerves are starved in consequence.

The only way the nerves can be reached is through the blood. By enriching the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the starved nerves are supplied with just the elements they need. This is proved by the experience of Mrs. J. E. Dadson, 12th Ave., east, Vancouver, B.C., who says:—"About three years ago I became very weak and nervous. I had pains in my side and back, and also suffered from frequent pains in the back of my head and neck. I was hardly able to do anything about the house. I would wake with a start in the night and my heart would flutter so that it almost choked me. I tried much doctor's medicine but it did me no permanent good. One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. These pills produced such a beneficial change in a short time that I kept taking them until I had used a dozen boxes. By this time there was such an improvement in my condition that friends would ask me what I was taking, and of course I was only too pleased to tell them it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am now feeling like a new person and am doing my own housework. We would not now be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house." You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FAVOR A SINGLE SELLING AGENCY FOR WHEAT POOL

Brandon, Man.—Resolutions supporting the formation of an inter-provincial selling agency to handle wheat in the three prairie provinces, and fully empowering the directors to proceed with the creation of a selling agency were passed at the first annual meeting of the shareholders of the Manitoba Wheat Pool here.

A bylaw providing that the president and vice-president be elected from among the board of directors, and that the secretary-treasurer be appointed by the board, was adopted. Seven members will make up the board.

The arrangement made with the mortgage companies in connection with wheat pledged to the pool by their tenants was explained by J. Murray, of Winnipeg, counsel for the pool. This arrangement is one by which the tenants of the mortgage companies are enabled by the co-operation of the companies to market through the pool not only their own wheat, but the wheat of the companies.

Says U.S. Oil Resources Are Near Depletion

Fuel Problems Discussed At Conference By British Expert

London.—Sir Richard Redmayne, noted British mining expert, told the International Power conference that the oil resources of the United States would be exhausted within 2,000 years. The coal of the British Empire would be gone within a few centuries, he declared, and attention should be directed to utilizing the potential energy in fuel to the best effect so as to conserve the world's supply. A low temperature of carbonization in coal would be an important step in this direction.

Resent New Dominion Law

Chinese In Victoria Bitterly Incensed Over Registration Rule

Victoria.—Chinese residents of Victoria held a series of mass meetings and wore specially designed tags on coat lapels July 1, expressing their protest against the new Dominion law requiring all Chinese in Canada to register. Speakers at the meetings declared that when China managed to solve her present problems and form a strong government it would inevitably retaliate against Canada. The enforced registration was bitterly resented by all Chinese, they said. Apart from the meetings there was no demonstration.

Vancouver.—When the attention of Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field to questions asked in the House of Commons at Ottawa, criticizing a statement purported to have been made in Victoria by the commander of the British special service squadron to the effect that Canada should equip four cruisers, Admiral Field categorically denied that he had made any such observation nor made specific reference as to what Canadian naval policy should be.

Bryan Supports McAdoo

New High Mark Is Reached In Forty-Second Ballot

Madison Square Gardens, N.Y.—William Gibbs McAdoo ran to a new high mark in the forty-second ballot in the Democratic national convention. He passed the much-sought goal of 500 votes by dint of much frantic work and persuasion and maneuvering on the part of his floor managers, who declared they had not finished their work yet.

Running close to the 46 and 44 ballot record of the Baltimore and San Francisco convention, respectively, the New York exhibition gave promise of setting a new mark. McAdoo hit his high mark so far in the fortieth ballot, when he polled 505½ votes. Smith at that time had dropped a little below his high level, 323½, made on previous ballots. At the close of the thirtieth ballot, McAdoo had stood at 415½ votes. Thus he gained nearly a hundred in the balloting and the votes he got were taken principally from John W. Davis who fell to 70 on the last ballot.

The feature of the session came when William Jennings Bryan, war horse of many campaigns, took the platform and declared himself for McAdoo. He declared the Democratic candidate must be firmly for prohibition.

Establish New Record For Prize Winning

Alberta Breeders Carry Off Premier Awards At Brandon

Brandon.—Sweeping before them all the premier awards in one of the strongest fields of Hereford cattle, O. G. Boggs and Sons, of Daysland, Alberta, established a new record for prize winning at the Brandon fair. These leading Alberta breeders carried off the senior and grand junior, and reserve grand championships, for both males and females in the Hereford classes. It is the first time in the history of the exhibition that any one exhibitor has achieved such a success in any breed. M. Alsager, of Leighton, Alta., also made a splendid showing in the Hereford division.

In the Ayrshire classes, which were not represented as well as in former years, Morton and Sons, of Fairlight, Sask., and R. R. Ness and Sons, of Howick, Que., shared honors. Henry Thompson, also of Fairlight, was well to the fore in the Jersey breed, while G. M. Read, of Stony Beach, Sask., figured among the prize winners.

Western exhibitors were well represented in the different classes for sheep. Prof. J. P. Saskville, of the University of Alberta, who is placing the awards, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the high quality of the exhibits.

Approve Germany's Entry Into League

International Federation Thinks It Best Solution of Reparations Problem

Lyons, France.—Subject to final acceptance of the entire report, the International Federation of League of Nations Societies meeting here, approved the recommendation of the Economic Commission, favoring the experts' reparations report, calling for Germany's entrance into the League of Nations with a permanent seat in the council and expressing the conviction that the mechanism of the league afforded the best channel, and the best guarantee, of a satisfactory solution of the reparations problem.

In a telegram to the Congress, Premier Herriot of France said: "France, cruelly wounded in the course of recent years, asks only just reparation for the damages she has suffered, but once that result has been obtained, she will be faithful to her democratic traditions and have no greater pre-occupation than to contribute with all her force to the organization of a sincere and lasting peace between the nations."

Claim Home Bank Not Legally Incorporated

Solicitors For Shareholders Prepare Defence of Double Liability

Toronto.—James W. Bain, K.C., and John G. O'Donoghue, K.C., counsel and solicitor, respectively, for the shareholders of the Home Bank of Canada, from whom the liquidator seeks to recover "double liability," have prepared their statement of defence. They claim that the Home Bank of Canada had not any legal right or power to issue, or dispose of, shares of its capital stock because it was never, at any time, a chartered bank and legally incorporated under and by virtue of the banking acts and laws of Canada. They say that the defendants never, at any time, agreed to purchase shares of the Home Bank with terms and conditions attached that in case of the insolvency of the bank they would be called upon to pay double liability.

The matter, they say, was never brought to their attention, and, therefore, they claim the provisions of the Bank Act of Canada do not apply to them.

Calgary.—"So far as we know, no particular plans will be made for the visit of His Royal Highness," said Professor W. L. Carlyle, manager of the E.P. Ranch. Professor Carlyle did not know when the Prince was coming, but assumed that the visit would probably take place in October.

Wants British Goodwill

South Africa's New Premier Declares Loyalty to Empire

Pretoria.—"Great Britain should, and always will be, as far as my government is concerned, the first and chief friend of South Africa," declared Premier Hertzog, leader of the newly formed Nationalist-Labor Government at a Nationalist banquet here. Unfortunately, in the past, there had been accusations made against the Nationalists, because they insisted upon the doctrine of South Africa first, but many of those who accused them were now with them on this point, he said. It always would be the aim of the Nationalists and his government to cooperate with Britain and to do so heartily with the rest of the Dominions.

Soldier Returns Gratuity

Came Back to Old Job and Did Not Need Money

Bridgeburg, Ont.—A former soldier in the Canadian Mounted Rifles, Alfred H. Lewis, 27 years old, a butler employed in Buffalo, has surrendered the $500 gratuity and pension he received five years ago to Rev. Canon D. Russell Smith, rector of St. Paul's Church, Fort Erie, to be used for the relief of any of his comrades and other persons in distress.

"The money was given me to help me back to civilian life, but it was easy for me, for I came right back to my old job. I have had no need for it and my conscience would not allow me to keep it any longer. I want it used for the purpose it was intended," Lewis said.

Authorized To Borrow $300,000,000

Ottawa.—In the House of Commons a bill authorizing the Dominion Government to borrow three hundred million dollars to meet maturing obligations, was given first reading. Four resolutions confirming international agreements regarding employment at sea, were passed, and bills based on them given first reading.

NO EMERGENCY LEGISLATION FOR RURAL CREDITS

Ottawa.—A report against emergency legislation this year in regard to rural credits was presented to the Commons banking committee by Dr. Matthew McKay, Liberal, North Renfrew, chairman of the sub-committee on rural credits.

The report stated that any plans adopted should apply to all provinces and it would not be possible to create machinery this year, and that, therefore, attention should be concentrated on the drafting of a permanent rural credit scheme.

Dr. McKay also presented a report recommending amendments to the Bankruptcy Act to provide that in provinces having a provincial officer analogous to a bankruptcy trustee, such officer may act as trustee under the Bankruptcy Act where the insolvent is a farmer.

The committee took up the proposal of H. E. Spencer (Progressive, Battle River) that the Bank Act be amended to provide that the entire bank circulation redemption fund be used for the redemption of the notes of defunct banks; and that other banks should be able to recover their contributions to the circulation fund from the defunct bank's assets only after all other liabilities had been paid.

H. T. Ross, secretary of the Canadian Bankers' Association, said the existing fund had proved a sufficient insurance. There had been no losses.

There was a long discussion and W. D. Euler, Liberal, Waterloo, asked Mr. Ross if under the Bank Act the Bankers' Association had any right to inquire into the condition of an individual bank.

Mr. Ross replied in the negative. Hon. T. A. Crerar opposed the amendment but thought all notes should be issued by the government. On a recorded vote, the Spencer amendment was defeated, 33 to 20. Hon. J. A. Robt voted against the amendment.

L. J. Ladner, Conservative, South Vancouver, dropped his proposal to abolish the double liability of shareholders.

Canadian Flag on Globe Encircling Tour

It would be hard to find a happier, healthier and more satisfied lot of people than the passengers aboard the palatial Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Canada" when she docked in Vancouver harbour on May 24th at the close of her epoch-making cruise around the world.

Since leaving New York on January 30th, these fortunate folk had sailed for four months in the wake of Drake, Magellan and Marco Polo, seeing all and more than all that those adventurers saw, with none of their discomforts. They had viewed the frowning, gun-flecked rock of Gibraltar, the hallowed ports of Greece and Rome, on the blue Mediterranean, had ridden camels in the shadow of the Sphinx, threaded the Suez Canal, crossed the sparkling Indian Ocean, walked the teeming streets of Indian cities, the gardens of the glorious Taj Mahal and the ramparts of the grim fort of Agra. Ceylon, the ravishingly beautiful, palm-crowned Manila, the hoary antiquities of China, the dazzling loveliness of the Flowery Kingdom of Japan, the immensities of the Pacific—all these had passed before their eyes in a gorgeous pageant of eighteen countries and fifty races. They saw idols, monkeys, palanquins, palaces, mosques, temples, gishas, mandarins, fellahs, shieks, troubadours, fakirs, pyramids. They had adventures with elephants in Kandy and a volcano in the Hawaiian Islands. They brought back with them a host of souvenirs and impressions to be treasured all their lives and they say to the world at large "Go thou and do likewise."

Every port called at was thrown open to the cruisers, and the reception afforded them at Victoria, B. C. on their return was no less cordial. Thousands lined the wharf on the arrival of the cruise ship, and Union Jacks mingled with Old Glory in the enthusiastic waving of flags which Victoria extended to the returning travellers. National airs and marches played by the Naval Brigade band were echoed on shipboard in the strains of the Philippine orchestra.

Interviewed in Vancouver as to the success of the cruise, President E. W. Beatty said, "I spoke to several passengers while crossing from Victoria and without exception they all expressed their complete satisfaction with the ship, its officers, and the arrangements made and carried out since the day she left Vancouver almost five months ago. That is good enough for me. It is ample demonstration that the Canadian Pacific can successfully conduct cruises in competition with any organization in the world and maintain that Company's standing as a credit to Canada."

The "Empress of France" will carry the Canadian flag on a similar globe-encircling tour from New York on January 14th.

BEAUTY SPOTS OF CANADIAN ROCKIES

MAN and nature combine to provide a real out-of-doors holiday resort at Jasper National Park, Alberta, on the main line of the Canadian National Railways. Photograph shows a few of the beauty spots close to Jasper Park Lodge, the magnificent log cabin hostelry of the C.N.R., which has been erected for the comfort and convenience of tourists who wish to make the most of the magnificent mountain scenery to be found within the borders of Canada's largest national park.

Centre photograph shows Mount Edith Cavell, an imposing pile named in honor of Britain's heroic war nurse. The darker colored mountain to the right of Cavell has appropriately been named Mount Sorrow. Mount Cavell, in addition to being the highest mountain in Jasper National Park, 11,033 feet high, is also one of the most beautiful from a scenic point of view. From the motor road which leads from Jasper Park Lodge almost to the foot of the Cavell glacier, which, because of its peculiar shape is known as "The Glacier of the Ghost," a magnificent panorama of the Athabasca Valley is secured. Motor cars are available at the Lodge for the use of tourists at all times, and there are also numerous pack and saddle horses, which may be secured, together with the services of guides, by those who wish to wander from the beaten track and thus approach some of the mountains which are not within the reach of the motor tourist.

World's Biggest Ship

The Leviathan Now Lays Claim to That Distinction

United States naval architects have added the largest ship in the world to the national possessions of the United States by the simple process of re-measuring the Leviathan. Accepted until now as the second largest vessel in the world, the United States shipping board is advertising the vessel, which sails on her maiden voyage, as a United States liner on July 4, as "the largest ship in the world."

Space gained through changing the motive power from coal to oil is said to have increased the tonnage from 54,282 to 59,596 tons. The British steamer Majestic has a registered gross tonnage of 56,551.

He Says He Can Now Do his Work

QUEBEC MAN USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mr. Aubin states that they have made him well and that his kidneys are without pain.

St. Nicholas Station, Que.—Special. —Gaudias Aubin, a well known and respected resident here is a sure friend of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He has tried them and found them good.

"I am now very well and my kidneys are without pain," Mr. Aubin states. "Since the time I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have not had any more pain and I have been able to get to my work."

That Mr. Aubin's trouble came from the kidneys is evidenced by the relief he got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They heal and strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood.

It is easy to see how neglecting them may be the cause of serious illness. Rheumatism, Dropsy, Urinary Troubles, Diabetes and Heart Disease are some of the penalties that follow neglecting the call of sick kidneys. Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

Ask your neighbor if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for sick kidneys.

Will Complete Branch Line

Construction of the railroad from Sparwood, near Fernie, B.C., to Calgary, by the Calgary and Fernie Railway Company, work on which was started in 1912, will be resumed this summer, according to announcement made by Franklin Crandall, one of the directors of the company, fifty miles being completed this summer.

WELL-MERITED SUCCESS

A distinguished citizen, honored politically and professionally, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for fifty years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and stomach alterative. It clears the skin, beautifies it, increases the blood supply and the circulation, and pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. Beauty is but skin deep and good blood is beneath both. For your blood to be good, your stomach must be in condition, your liver active. This Discovery of Doctor Pierce's puts you in fine condition, with all the organs active. Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ontario.

Upholds League of Nations

Has Already Prevented Four Wars, Says U.S. Ex-Senator

There may be those who still claim that the United States won the war, but Former Senator Colby, of New Jersey, does not hesitate to say that the United States has not done its share in the rehabilitation of the world since the war. "We've quit coldly, hardly, sulkily," he declared recently in a speech in New York. "And," he added, "unless we take our place again in world affairs, we won't have many years of comfort or peace of mind." He denied that the League of Nations might become a danger to the United States, and he gave it credit for having prevented four wars already.

A Hundred Dollars Worth For Thirty-Five Cents

When you are awakened from a sound sleep by Cramps, when without a moment's warning pain springs upon you, it's then you would readily pay a hundred dollars for the quick relief you could secure from a thirty-five cent bottle of trusty old Nerviline. Nothing like Nerviline to relieve cramps, stomach gas, diarrhoea and kindred ills. Nothing better for Neuralgia, cold in the chest and sore throat. The price of Nerviline is thirty-five cents, no more, no less, in all stores where medicines are sold.

Baby Aeroplane Engines

Small Engine Designed to Assist Gliders When Wind Currents Fall

In Great Britain the manufacture of aeroplane engines is tending in two opposite directions: First in the production of large engines for heavy aeroplanes, and second in the direction of small and light engines for the lightest machines. The latest triumph in the second class is a very small engine appropriately named the "Cherub" which is designed to develop only eighteen horsepower. This engine weighs only about 85 lb. Its special interest lies in its possible application to gliders. In spite of all that has been done with gliding it seems likely that with gliding alone it will not be possible to remain in the air more than about three hours or so under the most favorable conditions. The evolution of the "Cherub," however, suggests that by constructing a machine on glider lines and fitting it with the new engine it will be feasible to sail for considerable distances by switching on the engine when the wind currents would otherwise fail to support the machine in the air.

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil that it will remedy every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has achieved that greatness for itself and its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learned by experience.

Map Making From the Air

Many Problems Have Been Overcome After Careful Investigation

When aviation was first developed many people prophesied that it would prove very useful in the making of maps. It seems a simple thing to fly over the country and take a series of photographs which can be pasted together to make a complete pictorial map. Nevertheless there are many difficulties in the way of doing this operation with scientific accuracy. It is far from easy to keep an aeroplane level on a straight course. If a pilot keeps his eye on the horizon to maintain a level, he cannot at the same time search the ground below. This and other problems have been carefully investigated during the last two and half years by a professor of Cambridge University, England, on behalf of the British Air Force and the military authorities. Very ingenious means have been adopted with such success that it is now possible to keep the direction and level of an aeroplane constant within one hundred feet and also to keep the camera vertical within two degrees. Direct mapping has been found successful where the hills were not above six hundred feet; and other conditions of successful working have been exhaustively studied.

Rooms in Japanese houses always are built to fit a certain number of floor mats, which are of a standard size, about three by six feet.

Silos in Saskatchewan

Expected that a Greater Number Will Be Erected this Year than Last

Several hundred new silos were constructed in Saskatchewan last year, and indications are that the number erected in 1923 will equal, if not exceed, that number. In all parts of the province there is real enthusiasm as to the possibilities of sunflowers as an ensilage crop, and of sweet clover as a hay and pasture crop, and the coming season will undoubtedly see an increase of several thousand acres over last year's acreage planted to these forage crops.

PALE FACES AND WORN OUT NERVES

Due Solely to Weak, Watery Blood—A Tonic Is Needed

Anaemia—literally impoverished blood—comes on so stealthily that it is often well advanced before its presence is recognized. Feelings of fatigue and discomfort are the earliest manifestations of the trouble and these are seldom taken seriously. Gradually small tasks become an effort and exertion causes the heart to palpitate violently. The complexion becomes sallow or pale and there is loss of weight. The nerves grow weak and the victim displays irritability under slight provocation and is extremely sensitive to noise. The appetite is fickle and indigestion often follows.

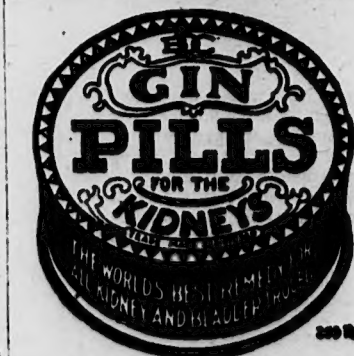

A condition of anaemia calls for a tonic, one that will enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves, and for this purpose there is nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills give the blood all those missing elements necessary to give strength to the nerves, color to the cheeks, and nourishment to starved organs and tissues. Miss Margaret J. Fraser, R.R. 2, Thessalon, Ont., has proved the value of this treatment. She says: "I was very pale and weak. My blood was poor and I was very nervous. I lost my appetite, my feet and ankles were swollen and I was in a very miserable condition. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got two boxes, and found before they were finished that they were helping me. I continued the pills until I had taken a half dozen boxes, with the result that I am now enjoying the best of health, all symptoms having disappeared. I feel confident that what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me they will do for others, if given a fair trial."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The telephone industry in the United States gives employment to more than 300,000 persons.

Comparative Speeds

In one second, sound in air travels 1,100 feet, sound in water 4,700 feet, light 186,400 miles; and an electric current anything up to 300,000 miles. The earth itself does a fair amount in the same brief period of time—it travels eighteen miles.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. A Famous Carpet

In a London museum is to be seen "the most famous carpet in the world," known as the Ardabil rug, which is valued at something like $250,000. It is about thirty-four feet long by seventeen feet wide and contains 30,000,000 knots. The rug was ordered in memory of a Shah of Persia who died in 1524. The making of it took the full time of the most famous rug-maker of the age for sixteen years, and even then he had apprentices to help him with the simpler parts.

Weakness and Distress Left by "Flu" Entirely Overcome By Tanlac, States Mrs. Johnson

"Tanic has meant so much to me that I want to pass the good news along to others who are trying to find the right medicine for their troubles," said Mrs. Ethel Johnson, 1113 Wascana St., Regina, Sask.

"An attack of grippe left me all run-down and feeling miserable. My appetite failed me and it seemed that I would never regain my lost weight and strength. My head ached constantly, my nerves were so bad I couldn't sleep soundly, and I felt weak and tired all the time.

"Tanic proved to be both a splendid medicine and tonic for me. It has not only helped me out of my troubles, but my weight has increased about fifteen pounds. I now have a wonderful appetite, steady nerves and that tired feeling has left me entirely. In my case Tanlac has come up to every good word I have heard about it."

Tanic is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold.

Russia Expects Revenue From Grain

One hundred million pounds of Russian grain were exported from the 1922 crop, according to a report issued by the Soviet Department of Statistics and published in the Labor Gazette. (A pound is equivalent to about 36 pounds avoirdupois.)

It is estimated that during the coming year grain exports will reach 300,000,000 pounds, from which it is hoped to derive between 200,000,000 and 250,000,000 gold roubles.

The sergeant asked for the victim's next of kin and who should be notified.

"Oliver never spoke of his family," answered the factor. "Had a picture or two on the packing box he used for a bureau, but we never discussed them." Said to notify the head office if anything went wrong with him. Dear eyes, the lad was peculiar in some ways. You'd think—

The sergeant's interest seemed not to lie in the trader's thoughts. He had two inquests on his hands, to say nothing of the capture of Avic of the foxes. For the moment forgotten was the fact that he had promised Constable La Marr this detail. Moreover, there remained that suspicion, born from his own narrow escape from the Ugluk-line, that there was more behind the murder than appeared on the surface. He led the way from the hut; waited until La Marr had affixed another police seal on the door, then moved ahead into the main trail, a sled-wide path which camp traffic kept beaten down between the banks of snow.

A shout from down-trail startled them. From out of the increasing dusk, bells jangling, bushed tails waving like banners, dashed a dog team dragging a light sled. Wondering, they flattened against the snow to give gangway. The arrival of a strange team at that time of the year was an event.

The sled was braked to a halt a few yards down the trail. A tall driver, slim despite an envelopment of furs, sprang from the basket and waited for them to come up.

"I thought I recognized a uniform in passing—and I need direction." The voice sounded clear as a bell on the evening frost and unmistakably feminine. Moreover, it carried none of the accent peculiar to the half-breed mission-trained women who spoke English. They looked closer into a face of pure white and eyes that might have been brushed into the paler with a sooty finger.

A white woman in Armitice—a young and comely girl of their own race! Think how incredible it must seem to three who had settled down to an October-April winter of isolation.

"I'm Sergeant Seymour, of the Mounted, in charge of this detachment," offered the policeman, for once speeding his speech. "Who're you looking for, ma'am?"

"I must find Oliver O'Malley's fur trading store."

"And who might be seeking our young trader?" The sergeant kept from his voice any hint of the dread that had clutched him.

"I'm Moira O'Malley of British Columbia—his sister."

This astounding complication left the three men speechless, glad for the dusk that helped mask the consternation that must be written on their faces.

CHAPTER IV.

Best Of Bad Business

In his grown-up life, Sergeant Seymour had met a procession of emergencies. Seldom had he failed to do the right and proper thing—the best for all concerned. But never had he faced a more difficult proposition than that presented by the young woman who now faced him on the trail, awaiting news of the brother she had journeyed so far to join.

When he thought of what lay in the hut they had just replaced under Mounted Police seal, he was distressed to the quick. When he pondered the distress and disappointment that must be hers when she learned the truth, that hidden strain of kindness within him promptly interposed barrier against his blurring out the facts, police fashion. He felt that he must temporize.

"You've come to the right camp, Miss O'Malley, but your brother won't be in to-night. In the morning— But surely you did not rush from the Mackenzie alone?"

A small sigh, doubtless of disappointment at the further delay, passed her lips; but no exclamation came. Evidently she was a self-contained young person.

No, she explained readily, she had not come alone. The Rev. Luke Morrow and his wife were behind with another sled and they had traveled only from Wolf Lake. The Rev. Morrow, it seemed, was a friend and fellow churchman of her father, then stationed at Gold, British Columbia.

"Only rushed from Wolf Lake!" exclaimed Constable La Marr, stressing the only, although after one glance into her wonder face he was hating himself the more for having let the fox hunter get away from him.

The missionaries were having trail trouble, she continued. Being so near Journey's end, she had dashed on with her lighter load, hoping to send her brother to help them into camp, as well as being the earlier to the reunion.

"Constable La Marr will go out at once," declared the sergeant. "How far are they?"

"Scarcely a mile. We were in sight of your flag when they spilled."

La Marr at once took the back trail, not waiting to go to the post for the worn police team nor, considering the distance, wishing to experiment with the girl's strange huskies.

At the moment Moira turned to quell an incipient dog fight; the sergeant turned quickly to Karmack.

"Not a word to her until after the inquest—until we've a chance to break it to her gently."

The trader nodded agreement and was introduced when she had straightened out her team.

"Mr. Karmack was—is your brother's chief here at lonely young Armitice?"

For a moment he held his breath for fear the verb slip would be noticed and the question of tense raised. The girl, however, was too much interested in her surroundings to heed. The trader helped by bowing in his best manner and seizing one of her mittened hands in both his own for a warm greeting.

"A fine lad, Oliver. Dear eyes, what a fine chap!"

His startling exclamation caused her own eyes to open, but Karmack merely grinned in amiable fashion.

"I hope you and your friends will accept the poor hospitality of the trading post, at least for this night," he concluded heartily. "We'll have plenty of room."

"But isn't there a mission house?" began the girl. "I thought the Morrows—"

Seymour interrupted. "Nothing doing, Karmack, with your commercialized hospitality. They're the first visitors of the winter; I claim them in the name of the king." He turned to the girl. "The mission house hasn't been opened for months. We'll make you comfortable at the detachment barrack—won't have to use the guard room, either. If you'll draw rein at the flag pole—"

Her "mush—mush on!" to the dogs rang clear and gave the policeman further speech with the factor.

"You couldn't have her there to-night, Karmack, in view of what I have to tell her to-morrow. Her brother's things scattered all about—she'd ask too many questions. Have you tangled in no time?"

Again Karmack nodded agreement. He hadn't thought of that, but only of being hospitable. It would have been a treat, though, to entertain such a charmer under the chaperonage of the missionary couple. He would send up some butter for their supper. That of the police stores smelled to the heavens.

"That's fine; if ours came from cows, they were athletes," Seymour replied with a grimace. "Come up with yourself for coffee. And I wish you'd send your man for their dogs and kennel them for the night. My malamutes raise Billy-blue when there's any new canine clan in sniffing distance."

The isolation of Armitice, with its difficulties of transportation, combined with its newness as a police post caused even the living room of the detachment to take on a barrack-like austerity.

The scant furniture had been made on the spot and was all too rustic. There were bunks along three walls and a scattering of skins upon the rough boards of the floor. A lithograph of King George, draped with the colors, occupied a position of honor, the only decoration being a print of the widely popular "Eddie" Prince of Wales. But logs blazed cheerfully in the stone fireplace and Moira O'Malley, divested of her outer trail-clothes, looked very much at home as she stood to its warmth.

Not until he returned from the kitchen and the starting of a "company" supper did Russell Seymour realize in full the startling beauty of the Irish girl who had come to them at such an unfortunate moment. She was within an inch of being as tall as himself as she stood there on the hearth. Her lampblack hair, coiled low on her lovely neck, actually was dressed to show her small ears—and almost had he forgotten that while women had pairs of such.

A generous mouth, full and red of lips, sent his eyes hastening on their fleeting inspection when she became aware of his presence in the kitchen doorway. If the even rows of pearls behind those lips had flashed him a smile then, the temptation must have been too great. Her slender figure merely hinted at rounding out in its mould of black blanket-cloth. He glanced shyly at her ankles—always the cover-point in his estimate of feminine pulchritude. She still wore her trail mukluks of fur, clumsy looking as a squaw's sacking, but he knew beyond doubt how silk stockings and pumps would become her.

In the eyes he had remarked on the trail, however, Moira's beauty reached its highest peak, he decided. They were as blue as the heart of an Ungava ice-berg and as warm as the fire which glowed behind her. They looked out at him in a friendly, inquiring way from behind lashes as dark as an Arctic winter night.

And on the morrow those lashes would be wet with tears of grief. At the moment he'd gladly have given his hope of heaven to have ushered a laughing young Oliver O'Malley into the room.

"Decorative, to say the least," she remarked, at last flashing him the threatened smile.

"Yes, ma'am—what ma'am?" he stammered.

"The uniform of the Mounted as you wear it in that door frame," she teased him. "At that, I'd rather see it— you on a horse."

He fell back on the defense he knew—a pretense of seriousness. "Up here we're the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Miss O'Malley. We know only two seasons—dog and canoe. There isn't a single 'G' Division mount north of Fort Resolution. By the time I see a horse again, I'll probably have forgotten how to ride. I'll climb aboard Injun style and try to steer him by his tail."

The sergeant was glad to hear the crunch of steps upon the snow. Under the circumstances, he was in no mood for persiflage and more than willing to give up the bluff that seemed required. He stifled a sigh of relief as La Marr ushered in the missionaries.

A quiet couple, plain, both a trifle frail-looking for Arctic rigors, the Morrows proved to be. Serious as they were about "The Work" to which they were prepared to give years of sacrifice, both were "regulars" in the life of the North. Scarcely would they wait to warm up before insisting on helping their hosts prepare supper. Moira, too, insisted on having a hand. The lean-to kitchen refused to hold them all, however, so Seymour cited the "too many cooks" rule and discharged all but Mrs. Morrow.

The meal which soon was on the oil-cloth was more substantial than formal. It consisted of warmed-up soup from a greasy kettle that held a week's supply at a time, then sizzling caribou steaks, sour-dough bread, boiled beans and bacon and, of course, mar-

At 80 Years Of Age Was Troubled With Shortness Of Breath Palpitation Of The Heart And Fainting Spells

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and fainting spells. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since."

I am 80 years of age and always keep them in the house, and when I feel any symptoms of my old trouble coming on all I have to do is to take a few doses. With the help of your Pills I expect to see many years yet. I always recommend them to any one who is suffering from heart trouble."

malade from distant England. It was the sort of menu that "sticks to the ribs" gratefully after a day in the open. When Karmack came in for his promised coffee, he found the post gayer than ever he had known it to be. Yet, for three of them buoyancy was as forced as jiggling at a wake.

With tact increased by the fear that some chance slip would disclose to their lovely guest the news that he felt temporarily should be kept from her, Sergeant Seymour discovered that the ladies were worn by their long run in the biting cold. He threw open the door of "officers' room," disclosing a wood fire crackling in a Yukon stove and two bunks spread with blankets fresh from the post's reserve supply.

Interesting Stories For Young Folks

BETSY

Henry W. Longfellow, the poet, tells us that

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us
Footprints in the sands of time."

"Footprints that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, may take heart again."

That is all beautifully true. It is also true that many a humble, obscure life can teach us lessons of trust and loyalty, and devotion to good things.

The story I am going to tell you is about a humble Indian girl, whose forefathers had been all savages, but whose home was a Christian one among the simple native children of the North.

Over fifty years before the time of our story, an unchristianized band of Indians fished in the inland waters, trapped in the forest for milk and otter, muskrat, bear or silver fox; and paddled the lake in birch barks; sometimes supplementing their paddle strokes by a sail contrived of a blanket fastened to a pole cut from a neighbouring bluff.

From far over the Atlantic came a brave man, with a heart full of peace, and anxious to acquaint the native with the brightness of his own life.

It meant much to settle in such a district in early days, long before the iron horse had made a path across the prairie; days when the trail wound its wandering way over rock and soil, skirting the bluffs, penetrating forest, mounting granite hills or hiding itself in rocky ravines.

And even after the perils of the trail were passed, there still remained the privations of the lonely Mission, cut off from companionship, with the keen biting winds of winter, the ice-locked lake, the powdery-dry snow falling and falling until one wondered if the air had turned to snow, and when morning came little was left of the buildings except the chimney tops; the whole Mission was buried in white as though shut up in the garments of the tomb.

Twice a year the mail carrier braved first the heat of summer and then the rigour of winter, and when the contents of the mail-bag were emptied on the parlour floor what delight in once more touching the outside world. It was like reading history after it was past to scan the doings of the year. It was like a breath from the dear old home to see the familiar postage stamps and to read the welcome words of dear ones from letters, enclosing home flowers and fragrant love messages.

In all this life no one made greater sacrifice than the missionary's wife, who saw no women save her dusky pagan sisters with the dark brown eyes with a yearning look in them.

Many years ago Keewatin, the "North Wind" with his little daughter Akwinanoh were sitting by their wig-wam door looking down the long stretch of the Northern Lake, when suddenly a strange apparition some miles away startled them into attention. Their cry gathered almost the whole camp, which watched with wonder and amazement a changing object moving toward them, but unexplainable by even their keen Indian sight.

Whatever it was it gleamed and glistened in the setting sun until finally Keewatin, with a glimmer of inspiration in his eyes, said, "I know what it is. It is an island of light." He was nearer the truth than he knew, for it was the tin canoe of the English missionary, the tin reflecting, in scintillating rays, the sunlight, and the canoe bearing the messenger of a light that so far had never yet shone for them. Every stranger excited the curiosity of the savage man, but Akwinanoh had a new object of interest from that day, for with the white man came a tiny white baby that soon grew into the pet of the reserve!

The little daughter of the North Wind adopted the white man's child as her special charge, and while the missionary worked and prayed to bring the Gospel of the Christ-child into the hearts of the Saulteaux, another little child slowly but surely worked its way into the life of the brown maiden, transforming her, and through its gentle pressure Akwinanoh soon yielded to the influence of the Gospel of Bethlehem's babe.

Later she became the Christian mother of her who was known as Betsy. Betsy grew into a girlhood that was beautiful, even from the white man's point of vision.

She was gentle as the breath of the south wind, with a sweet grace of manner and a consistency of life that made her a strong support to the man who came to them in his canoe.

To be a follower of Christ seemed natural to her, for she had His spirit, and was full of unselfish thoughtfulness.

One day as she was walking along the river edge she saw a child slip and fall. Without a moment's hesitation she plunged into the deep, brown stream, six fathoms at the rock, and brought the child safe to its parents' tepee. It was early in the spring and the waters were cold, and before night a raging fever told her low.

For weeks she suffered, waited upon by the heathen medicine man, uncomplainingly swallowing the hideous compounds from his mix-all bottles, and slowly sinking under the fatal grip of pneumonia.

The young husband refused at first to allow the approach of the white doctor, and the missionary could only pray and hope.

Finally, when one day the light burned low, the obstinate young Indian bowed before the compelling force of necessity, and proper medical attendance began. Then the doctor took hold, nursing her as though she were his own child; watching symptoms and succeeding in bringing back hopeful conditions into the wasted frame.

Rich Gold Area

"An area which in my opinion, within the next few years, will develop into one of the world's richest gold-mining camps, is that section of the Canadian pre-Cambrian Shield known as the Rice Lake district, which extends from the Indian reserve at Hole River, on the east side of Lake Winnipeg, to the Ontario boundary." This statement was made by J. E. Cole, a mining engineer of New York, who has just returned from an extensive tour of the area in the interests of American capital, while passing through Winnipeg.—Free Press.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

"Six bottles of Tanlac, taken eight months ago, made a new man of me and I have had no further trouble with rheumatism, or my health, since. My nerves are steady as a die, I sleep fine and feel the same way. Anyone wanting to know of me what Tanlac will do, just phone me here at the hotel."

For Air Travellers

British Air Minister Takes Peep Into the Future

After having taken a peep into the future, Air Minister Lord Thomson came down to the House of Lords recently and assumed the role of prophet. He said in three years' time he hoped to have in the air two kinds of airships suitable respectively to commercial and naval purposes. In ten years he hoped to see at least six airship constructors competing for orders in this country and building up a great and growing industry, serving the purposes of Imperial communication, bringing people of the empire and the world closer together, and carrying freight as well as mails.

Sometime in the future, the minister said, he foresaw the day when noble lords would leave Parliament House on gliders with light engines, and wing their way westward along the Thames valley or northwards to Scotland. On their way they will need a rest and perhaps they may call in at some great caravanserai floating serene, safe, high up, far removed from terrestrial fuss and noise.

Shipping Not Yet Efficient

Will Take German Mercantile Fleet Years to Recover

It will be a good many years before the German mercantile fleet attains its pre-war standard, in the opinion of Carl Stimming, director-general of the North German Lloyd.

"For some years," Mr. Stimming said on his way home from a shipping conference in London, "we must be content with the progress we have made up to the present time."

Leder Keep, managing director of the Hamburg American line, returning from the same conference, declared there was not the slightest chance of his line resuming its fast pre-war standard of sailings to and from New York for many years. There are no steamers available, he said, and construction costs have risen so high that the building of ships with speed must wait awhile.

Britain Increases Old Age Pensions

Chancellor of Exchequer Hopes Soon To Reduce Age Limit

A quarter of a million persons in Great Britain of 70 years or over will benefit as a result of the extension of the old age pensions scheme, which has received the approval of the House of Commons. Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, when introducing the necessary financial resolution, said single persons having an income, not necessarily earned, of 25 shillings weekly, will be entitled to 10 shillings pension weekly and married couples whose income is 50 shillings weekly will be entitled to one pound sterling, jointly, a week. The cost of the additional scheme will be £4,000,000 in the first year, but will rise to £7,000,000.

The proposals, said the minister, in no wise could be regarded as a final settlement of the problem of old age pensions. He hoped shortly to submit a scheme of mothers' and widows' pensions and reduce the age limit to 65.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 13

THE BOYHOOD OF JESUS

Golden Text: Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men. Luke 2:52.

Lesson: Luke 2:40-52. Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:9-16. Reference Material: Matthew 21:23; Luke 2:39.

The Text Explained and Illumined

I. The Development of Jesus, verse 40. Like every one who has ever lived, Jesus entered into the world as a helpless infant, and like all normal children his powers developed gradually. As a child he grew, and waxed strong, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him. "You know the Child Jesus in a picture at once, by a halo around his brow. There was no glory in his real life to mark him; we know this for in after years his brethren thought his fame strange, and his townsmen rejected him. Gradually and gently he woke to consciousness of life and its manifold meaning; gradually, and not at once, he embraced the sphere of human duties, and he woke to his earthly relationships one by one—the Son, the Brother, the Citizen, the Master. It is a very deep and beautiful and precious truth that the Eternal Son had a human and progressive childhood. Happy the child who is suffered to be and content to be what God meant him to be—a child while childhood lasts!" (G. W. Robertson).

II. Attending the Passover, verse 41. Women were not obliged to attend the Feast of the Passover at Jerusalem, but Mary accompanied Joseph on his annual pilgrimage. When Jesus was twelve years old his parents took him with them for the first time, because he was approaching his thirteenth year when, according to Jewish custom, he would become "a son of the Law" and subject to its obligations. Three times Joseph is referred to as the parent or father, of Jesus, verses 41, 42 and 48; Dr. Garvie explains that "Joseph is rightly described as one of Jesus' parents, for in the home he provided and protected, he filled a parent's place and played a parent's part. To him also God committed a trust and task."

Of all the new societies that have been started in recent years the Sunlight League seems to us the most likely to do solid and lasting work for the benefit of mankind. Its aim is, not merely to teach the benefits of sunlight cures for diseases and debility, but to make everyone understand how these evils may be warded off by abundance of light and air in our homes and work-places. Without such aid to health and enjoyment, we cannot make the most of our lives. "Smokeless cities, light and airy dwellings"—these are what the Sunlight League demands. Needful For Safeguarding Empire Says Canadian Navy League

That the Navy League of Canada should, through its executive, ask the Dominion Government to bring to the attention of the Imperial Government the need of Singapore as a naval base that will safeguard the security of the Empire, was the substance of a resolution introduced and adopted unanimously by the Dominion Council of the Navy League.

Preliminary to the resolution President Samuel Harris read a statement he had prepared on the subject, examining the question from the standpoint of strategy, international relations and the financial aspect.

The president based his observations on the remarks in the British press that Canada had not yet tendered any advice on the subject of the proposed naval base at Singapore to protect the Pacific.

Didsbury Wins From Innisfail, Loses to Carstairs

Two league baseball games were played on the local grounds during the week. Innisfail came down on Friday and the locals put the extinguisher on them to the tune 22 to 8.

On Monday night Didsbury and Carstairs came together on the Didsbury diamond and it was a real game, both sides playing major league ball. Although the score looks very one-sided the fans received their money's worth in the tight decisions and close plays made. The score was 10-5 in favor of Carstairs. Both Stouffer for Didsbury and Guya for Carstairs in the box pitched the whole nine innings and while both were a little wild at times they contributed to the gaiety of nations. Tessier had the catchers mask on for Didsbury and showed some good work in his new position.

Without finding fault with the Carstairs stick handlers, who are a fine bunch of sports, it must be stated that the base umpire they brought up with them, Gillman certainly did not show any good will to the locals, in fact some of his decisions would have caused murder if any other team had been playing with Carstairs. Of course this had something to do with the difference in score because if there were any breaks coming Didsbury did not get them, they all went to the visitors.

Some of the town officials are afraid that the taxpayers will refuse to accept the 13 mill reduction on the tax rate because that number is refuted to be unlucky, and that they will want to pay the same amount as last year to avoid any unpleasantness. Don't worry. Mr. Secretary, the taxpayer is perfectly willing to stand for such hard luck as this reduction.

Bender reported the roads that way in excellent condition.

WHAT THEY SAY IS RIGHT

Mr. M. Weber,
Dear Sir,—As I have been using your flour for a long time, thought I would write a line to tell you how well I am pleased with it. I make all kinds of baking of it, and find it equally good for all. It makes, by far, the best tasted light bread of any flour I have used. I have never had a failure with your flour. I only use salt and sugar and potatoes instead of dry yeast.
Mrs. John Metzgar.

THEY'RE ALSO BEING WORN OUT

A literary critic says that there were only a mere handful of worthwhile books issued last year, and that the most successful of the lot didn't reach a sale of a hundred thousand copies. He seemed to be quite peeved at the lack of appreciation of good reading matter. We might call his attention to the fact that the best seller the world has ever known (7,101,289 copies having been distributed last year) is a pretty good old book. It has been on the market some little time now, and yet there was an increase of its sale last year of 2,538,222 copies. We refer, of course, to the Bible.

These figures not only show that the Bible is a consistent seller—a "best seller," if you wish to call it that—but that it is being read and reread, being worn out. Collier's Weekly.
